THINGS
TO KNOW

NIKKI M. MASCALL, REPORTER

There are a lot of questions to ask ourselves when it comes to throwing out trash: Is it recyclable? Is it a food scrap? Should I compost this? Is it just, you know, trash? To help us New Yorkers sort (pun intended) those questions out, Bryant Park is piloting a "compost concierge" program in which their employees separate refuse from the thousands of people that spend their lunchtime in the park each weekday. To learn more about the program, check out page 4 or visit metro.us.

METRO.USCNN SAYS CORRESPONDENT
EXCLUDED FROM EVENT

CNN said on Wednesday that one of its White House correspondents, Kaitlin Collins, was excluded from covering one of President Donald Trump's events on Wednesday, prompting a complaint by the White House Correspondents Association. Collins was barred from a Rose Garden event for asking questions at an earlier event about an audio recording of Trump purportedly discussing with his former lawyer, Michael Cohen, a fund being established to pay a former Playboy model, Karen McDougal, for keeping quiet about an alleged affair with Trump. Collins asked about the audio recording in a picture-taking session in the Oval Office as Trump met with European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker. CNN said in a statement that Collins was told by White House communications director Bill Shine and press secretary Sarah Sanders that her questions had been "inappropriate" and that she could not attend an event later in the Rose Garden during which Trump and Juncker announced a joint working dialogue on trade. "This decision to bar a member of the press is retaliatory in nature and not indicative of an open and free press. We demand better," CNN said.

TRUMP SAYS 'TOO BAD'
AFTER AUDIO RECORDING

2 President Donald Trump on Wednesday expressed disbelief that his longtime personal lawyer Michael Cohen would have taped conversations with him, a day after an audio recording of a conversation between the two men was aired on U.S. television. A lawyer for Cohen, Lanny Davis, released the recording of Trump and Cohen discussing paying for the rights to a Playboy model's story about an alleged affair with Trump and it aired on CNN on Tuesday night. Government watchdog group Common Cause has said that the proposed payment benefited Trump's presidential election campaign and the failure to document it was potentially illegal. Some legal experts, however, say that if the payment was made for personal reasons, it would not run afoul of federal election laws. Under U.S. election law, presidential candidates must disclose expenses, loans and campaign contributions, which are defined as things of value given to a campaign in order to influence an election. Trump lawyer Rudy Giuliani has said the proposed payment was a personal matter and not subject to campaign finance law.

ACTIVISTS DEMONSTRATE AGAINST TRUMP'S IMMIGRATION
POLICIES OUTSIDE TRUMP TOWER

3 Activists rally outside Trump Tower in Midtown, calling on the Trump administration to meet Thursday's court-ordered deadline to return immigrant children to their families after being separated at the southern border. A federal judge ordered a July 26 deadline for the U.S. government to reunite over 2,000 migrant children ages 5 to 17 that had been separated from their families.

PRESIDENT POSTPONES
SECOND PUTIN SUMMIT

4 Trump weathered fierce criticism after the Helsinki summit last week for doubting his own intelligence agencies and defending Putin. Amid a backlash he then claimed to have misspoke, but then invited Putin to visit the White House in the fall, possibly before the midterm elections. But the Kremlin was being coy about the invitation, and as of Tuesday had still not accepted — one aide even floated the idea of meeting somewhere else, like on the sidelines of the upcoming G20. Trump's Helsinki performance earned him rebukes even from within his own party — with leaders saying he was too soft on Putin. While Russia's political and business leaders initially hailed the summit as a victory, now some fear Putin may have overplayed a winning hand. Namely, that by opening Trump up to criticism at home, Putin has created a backlash among U.S. lawmakers which could lead to more sanctions for Russia. The rouble tumbled on Tuesday after Sens. Lindsey Graham and Bob Menendez said they had begun working on new sanctions that would, among other things, take aim at Russian sovereign debt.

TRUMP'S HOLLYWOOD
STAR VANDALIZED

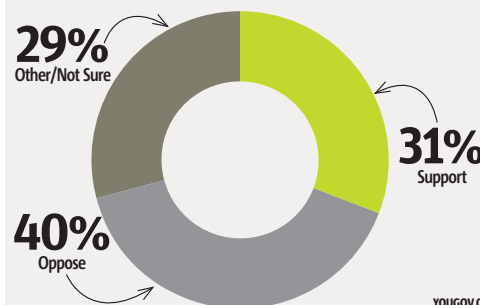

5 A man with a pickaxe vandalized U.S. President Donald Trump's star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame early on Wednesday and later surrendered to police, a spokesman for the Los Angeles Police Department said. "A pickaxe was used in vandalizing the star" embedded in the sidewalk near Hollywood Boulevard and Highland Avenue in Los Angeles at about 3:30 a.m., Sergeant Ray Brown of the LAPD said by telephone. Installed in 2007, Trump's star has been frequently vandalized since he was elected president in 2016. The suspect, 24-year-old Austin Clay, was in custody at the Los Angeles County Jail on a charge of felony vandalism with a bail of $20,000, jail records showed. As pedestrians walked by the site, in an area popular with tourists, Gregg Donovan, 58, of Los Angeles, stood by with a "Trump 2020" sign, saying he was protecting it from further damage. "It's a California landmark," Donovan said. "Don't take your anger out on a tourist landmark." The star was nearly completely destroyed, and there was graffiti scrawled on it.

“More than one-third of New Yorkers’ waste is made up of the material that we’re collecting today,” Tal Zaken of DSNY said of the Bryant Park program.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
nikki.mascali@metro.us

It happens to us all: You’re in front of multicolored garbage cans with refuse and asking what can be confusing questions: Is this recyclable? Regular trash? Am I killing the environment? Does separating really matter? To help you sort, pun intended, all that out, it might be time you visit the Bryant Park “compost concierge.”

Standing in front of these with refuse can be confusing. That’s where the compost concierge of Bryant Park comes in. NIKKI M. MASCALI

“We noticed there is quite a bit of refuse in the park, and we wanted to make it easy for people,” said Kati Solomon, director of operations at Bryant Park. “We don’t think that recycling is always sorted easily without help, partly because the system confuses people, so we came up with this ‘compost concierge’ idea, where this person is here to help you sort.”

The compost concierge is onsite near the northwest edge of Bryant Park for peak lunchtime hours every Monday through Friday from 12:30-2:30 p.m., when there typically is between 3,000 to 5,000 visitors, Solomon said.

Since Bryant Park began the compost concierge program last winter, “we were able to get a giant can reduced to what was actually garbage, not recycling paper, recycling plastic, metal, bottles or compost,” Solomon said. “We’ve been surprised that there’s a lot of packaging that could be recycled.”

The Bryant Park staffers aren’t the only ones learning from the program.

“I would say 70 percent of people coming by are asking questions about what they can do, so we’ve been really surprised, happily surprised, that having a person always with the compost bin has helped get the misinformation sorted out,” Solomon said.

Nearby businesses that would hold onto or freeze their compost to take to a Department of Sanitation food scrap drop-off site once a month now bring those materials to Bryant Park, which is part of DSNY’s curbside organics collection route.

“The activities that are happening here at Bryant Park are feeding into a larger program that we’re trying to develop to better incorporate community scale and neighborhood scale food-waste diversion into our citywide curbside infrastructure,” said Tal Zaken, DSNY’s senior coordinator of organics outreach. “We have a goal of sending no waste to landfills by 2030, it’s an ambitious goal, and this is a major part of that. More than one-third of New Yorkers’ waste is made up of the material that we’re collecting today.”

This initiative is in the process of rolling out to a number of other partnerships across the city, Zaken said.

SCAR Act demands info on separated children

New York Sen. Brian Benjamin introduced on Wednesday the Separated Children Accountability Response Act, also called the SCAR Act.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Immigration activists and local faith leaders joined Sen. Brian Benjamin on Wednesday to introduce new legislation to address the crisis of separated children spurred by the Trump administration's immigration policies.

The Separated Children Accountability Response (SCAR) Act, requires state-contracted facilities like the Cayuga Center in Harlem to provide the public with a reoccurring 15-day report outlining the number of children held within its facilities.

"Part of the reason why we wanted to have it

On Tuesday, the Trump administration announced that it has reunited 1,200 families who had separated children 5 and older.

known as that is because this is a scar on our nation. This is a scar that's going to take a long time to heal," Benjamin said of the name at a press conference on Wednesday. "The amount of trauma that we have inflicted — government sanctioned trauma that we have inflicted — on these young parents and these young children is just incredible."

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio visited the Cayuga Center in June, upon which he found out that there were more than 200 separated children there as a result of the Trump administration's policy of separating migrant families at the southern United States border.

It's not entirely known how many separated children there are in total. Health and Human Services Secretary Alex Azar confirmed earlier in July that there were still "under 3,000" separated children in federal custody; on Tuesday, the Trump administration announced that it has reunited 1,200 families who had separated children 5 and older.

"Many of us are here because we know that this is just wrong," Benjamin said. "Then, the question becomes, 'What can we do to make a difference?'" total number of separated children in that agency; the median length of time these children have been there and so on.

Failure to report this information "will be punishable as filing a false instrument under the Penal Law," per Benjamin's office, and the Commissioner of the Office of Family and Children's Services may revoke the license of the agency.

"The lack of transparency and public information around how many kids Trump's nightmarish immigration policies have stripped away from their families and displaced to agencies across our state is truly appalling," said Assembly Member Harvey Epstein, who introduced the legislation with Benjamin, in a statement.

"We refuse to be kept in the dark by this morally bankrupt presidential administration: With this legislation, we are clawing back the information we need to understand the scale of this crisis and hold agencies accountable so we can focus the necessary resources to reunite families."

BRIEF

Pizza delivery man detained by ICE back home

Pablo Villavicencio, the Brooklyn pizza delivery man who was detained in June by Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), has been freed from detention, according to The Legal Aid Society.

Villavicencio, 35, was arrested on June 1 when he was delivering food to the Fort Hamilton Army base in Brooklyn. On Tuesday, a federal district court judge ordered the immediate release of Villavicencio.

"The rule of law, humanity and morality prevailed [on Tuesday] with the Court's order releasing Pablo back to his family and community," said Adriene Holder, attorney-in-charge of the Civil Practice at The Legal Aid Society, in a statement. "This decision should serve as a rebuke against the Trump Administration and its merciless crusade to tear families apart."

Guy Molinari, Republican voice in Democratic New York, dead at 89

The former SI borough president died from complications from pneumonia.

Guy Molinari, a New York Republican who stood out in a city run by Democrats as a fighter for his home borough of Staten Island, and a “larger than life figure,” died Wednesday at 89, the Staten Island Republican Party said.

His death at a Manhattan hospital was caused by pneumonia, The New York Times reported, citing his son-in-law Bill Paxon.

“Few public servants in New York City fought with more passion for their borough than Guy Molinari,” New York Mayor Bill de Blasio, a Democrat, said on Twitter. “His impact will forever be felt on Staten Island and across our city.”

Molinari served nine years in Congress before resigning to begin a 12-year stint as Staten Island borough president in 1990. In that role, he developed a close relationship with fellow Republican and former New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani, whose campaigns he advised in the 1990s.

In a city where registered Democrats outnumber Republicans by more than six to one, the Molinari-Giuliani era saw outsized attention to Republican-leaning Staten Island.

During Molinari’s tenure, the detested Fresh Kills landfill, known as the Staten Island dump, was closed. The fare for the Staten Island Ferry, the borough’s link to Manhattan, was eliminated and one of the ferry boats now bears his name. A minor league ballpark was also built on the island.

“Guy was, simply stated, a larger-than-life figure here on the Island and throughout New York,”

Staten Island Republican Chairman Brendan Lantry said in statement.

In 1988, Molinari headed the New York state presidential campaign for President George H.W. Bush, whom he had gotten to know while serving in Congress. But he parted ways with the Bush family 12 years later, backing Senator John McCain in his unsuccessful bid for the Republican presidential nomination against George W. Bush.

Gaetano Kenneth Molinari was born on Manhattan’s Lower East Side on Nov. 23, 1928, the son of an Italian immigrant father and a mother of Czechoslovakian descent.

Known as Guy, he changed his middle name as a teenager to Victor, after his godfather, because “Guy K. Molinari just didn’t roll off the tongue easily,” he said in his 2016 autobiography, “A Life of Service.”

Molinari interrupted law school to serve in the Korean War with the U.S.

Marine Corps in the early 1950s.

He took his cue for a life in politics, but not for party affiliation, from his father, S. Robert Molinari, the first foreign-born citizen to serve in the New York State Assembly in 1943. The elder Molinari was elected as a Republican but then became a Democrat and lost his bid for re-election.

“My father respected my views and never had any problems with my being a Republican,” Guy Molinari said in his book.

In 1956, Molinari married Marguerite Wing, who died 10 years ago. Their only child Susan Molinari, who also became a Republican, succeeded her father in Congress, serving from 1990 until 1997, when she resigned to take a job as a television journalist.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

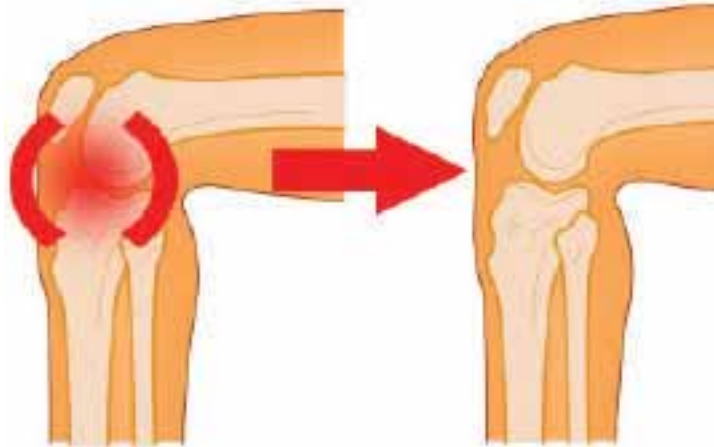

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Uber riders say they're victims of 'vomit fraud' and it's hurting their wallets

Some drivers are charging riders with Uber cleaning fees for incidents that apparently never happened.

MEAGAN MORRIS
letters@metro.us

The Uber cleaning fee is one way to protect drivers — and their cars — when riders get sick or have an accident. But a growing number of Uber passengers are saying they are the victims of vomit fraud, all thanks to unscrupulous drivers wanting to make a few extra bucks off their fares.

“But every new email from Uber came from a different representative and always favored the driver.”

Miami resident Andrea Pérez

Miami resident Andrea Pérez said that happened to her last year when she called an Uber.

“I requested an Uber from Wynwood to the Edgewater area. At one point the driver told me a road was closed and that he could drop me off near my destination to avoid an extra charge. I agreed and got off,” she told the el Nuevo Herald.

Then she received notification of an Uber cleaning fee — to the tune of $98 — along with a photo of vomit on the seat of the SUV she rode in.

“I immediately contacted Uber through the app. I told them that I was alone, sober, that I was not carrying any drinks and that it was impossible for me to have caused that damage,” she told the newspaper. “But every new email from Uber came from a different representative and always favored the driver."

Uber cleaning fee fraud is widespread, some customers say. Besides Perez, another Miami man, William Kennedy, said he was charged an Uber cleaning fee twice in one night for allegedly vomiting in two vehicles — something he said he didn't do.

"It was a total fraud by two different drivers. They have everything planned for the fraud," Kennedy told the Miami Herald. Eventually he was reimbursed for the $300, but Perez wasn't so lucky with her extra charge.

Stories of vomit fraud have popped up around the country over the past few years, including in New York, Los Angeles and Tampa, Florida. The Tampa driver was eventually fired for faking the incident to get the Uber cleanup fee.

"I didn't realize I was in Zone 3 until now. I must make a plan."

Hot car deaths are already hitting record numbers in 2018

And it's not easy stopping this terrifying trend.

letters@metro.us

Hot car deaths claim an average of 37 children per year, but 2018 is shaping up to be the worst.

As of July 22, there have been 28 confirmed hot car deaths involving children — and three more deaths are attributed to hot cars, though autopsy reports are not yet completed.

That's more hot car deaths by this point than any other year in history.

"We always see an increase in child injuries and deaths this time of year," KidsAndCars.org president and founder Janette Fennell said in a statement.

"It is devastating to know that there are families all across America right now holding their precious babies, unaware that they will lose them in a hot car this summer. But, these children don't have to die. Parents and caregivers have the power to make sure that this doesn't happen to them."

"Don't think for one moment that only a monster would do this," Kristie Reeves told ABC News of hot car deaths. She lost her daughter, Sophia Rayne "Ray Ray" Cavaliero, in 2011 after her father forgot to drop her off at daycare before going to work.

"I get why people dismiss it. It's easier as parents than to accept the truth that your memory can fail you in times of stress, in times of chaos," she said. "That's terrifying that your own mind can fail you with something so precious, your bundle of joy."

37

Hot car deaths claim an average of 37 children per year.

But it does happen — and it's not as uncommon as many people think.

"We have a brain system that allows us to operate on autopilot," David Diamond, a professor at the University of South Florida, told the Tampa Bay Times.

"People hate when I compare forgetting children to forgetting other things, but the process is the same," he said. "As hard as it is to appreciate, we lose awareness of children as easily as we lose awareness of other things."

And children's bodies heat up much faster than adult bodies, making it easier to experience — and succumb to — vehicular heatstroke.

PREVENT HOT CAR DEATHS WITH A SIMPLE CHECKLIST

The prevalence of hot car deaths is why organizations like Kids and Cars recommend following the "Look Before You Lock" safety checklist every time you get out of the car.

—Make a routine of opening the back door of your car to check that nothing — and no one — is left behind.

—Put something you need (like your purse, wallet or cell phone) in the back seat so you don't forget it.

—Ask childcare providers or schools to call if a child hasn't been dropped off as expected.

—Keep a stuffed animal in the car seat and put it in the front passenger seat as a reminder that your child is in the car seat.

Also, not all hot car deaths happen as a result of forgetting a child in the car. Children can get locked inside a parked car, too. You can cut down on that risk by:

—Keeping vehicles locked at all times, even when in the garage or in the driveway — and even if you don't have kids.

—Never leave keys or remote openers in reach of children.

—Check the car and trunk first if a child comes up missing.
Do whatever you can to help prevent a tragedy, because as Reeves said, it can affect the rest of your life.

Water rescues, flooded roads as rains hammer US mid-Atlantic

Rescuers pulled people from inundated cars on flooded streets near Baltimore on Wednesday as heavy rain soaked the U.S. mid-Atlantic coast for a fifth day, swelling rivers, closing roads and imperiling homes.

Heavy rains fell overnight from central New York state south through eastern North Carolina, where the National Weather Service forecast that a fresh round of downpours could cause more flooding. Eastern Virginia and Pennsylvania were also hard hit.

Emergency workers around Baltimore pulled people from at least three vehicles stuck in floodwater as deep as 3 feet, Baltimore County's Police and Fire Department said on Twitter.

"NEVER go into flood waters," the National Weather Service's Weather Prediction Center said on Twitter. "It doesn't take much water to sweep away a person or vehicle, and water can damage or wash away the underlying road — creating unseen hazards."

Authorities closed highways and roads in parts of Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia because of flooding.

"With the rainfall we have seen over the last week, the ground is very saturated, so any additional rainfall we receive, especially heavy, really has nowhere to go, resulting in flooding," said National Weather Service meteorologist Brandon

Fling.

Up to 14 inches of rain has fallen along the U.S. East Coast since Saturday, swelling waterways well above flood levels.

Local news video showed water streaming into homes and businesses in some places and reaching the tops of automobiles as rescue crews worked to save motorists.

"It just happened out of nowhere, and next thing my car was just shut off, and I'm like, 'What do I do now?'" Zachary Reichert told NBC News after being rescued from his flooded Jeep in Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania. "I can't swim in the first place, so I wasn't jumping into those waters."

Hersheypark, the Pennsylvania amusement park, said it would be closed on Wednesday after the town surrounding it issued a disaster declaration.

It also was closed on Monday.

Airports in New York and Philadelphia reported delays of more than an hour, according to Federal Aviation Administration.

The downpours were expected to continue as at least a chance of rain was in the forecast for the area for several more days.

Separately, parts of northwestern Colorado were drenched with rain on Wednesday morning, where officials warned of flash flooding and debris in an area recently scarred by wildfires. REUTERS

Under fire in Congress, Pompeo defends Trump's Putin summit

Pompeo did say he was briefed on the president's one-on-one with Putin.

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo on Wednesday vigorously defended President Donald Trump's foreign policy actions as senators from both parties denounced Trump's behavior, particularly at his recent summit with Russia's Vladimir Putin.

Pompeo faced tough questioning from Democrats and Republicans during testimony before the Senator Foreign Relations Committee about Trump's failure to hold the Russian president accountable for Moscow's meddling in the 2016 U.S. election at their meeting in Helsinki last week.

"I have tremendous faith in you, I think you're a patriot ... but it's the president's actions that create tremendous distrust in our nation," the committee's Republican chairman, Bob Corker, told Pompeo.

"Is there some strategy behind creating doubt in U.S. senators' minds, on both sides of the aisle, doubt in the American people as to what his motivations are?" added Corker, a frequent critic of Trump.

Corker also criticized comments by Trump that North Korean leader Kim Jong Un was "very talented" and that "he loves his people," given the country's serious human rights abuses. "Really?" Corker said.

Pompeo said he had been comprehensively briefed on Trump's one-on-one meeting with Putin, who U.S. intelligence agencies said knew about Russia's meddling in the election.

Putin has said no such interference occurred and Trump has denied there was any collusion between his campaign and Moscow. The matter is under investigation by U.S. Special Counsel Robert Mueller.

In often testy exchanges with senators, Pompeo listed actions by the Trump administration against Russia, including what he said were over 200 sanctions against Moscow. REUTERS

The 'Contractor to the Stars' shows you creative ways to home-improve your apartment

Home improvement for your apartment doesn't necessarily require big bucks, just some ingenuity and Gold Bond, says Stephen Fanuka.

JEFF TOMKO
jeff.tomko@metro.us

Home improvement can be that necessary and fun activity worth getting your hands dirty. Fixing up your space applies to both homeowners and month-to-month renters because, as Stephen Fanuka puts it, wherever you lay your head — and a good portion your wallet — is your castle, so style it to your personality and budget.

Known as the "Contractor to the Stars," Fanuka's built a successful TV career from constructing the elaborate homes of celebrities such as Beyonce, Bruce Willis, Tony Bennett, Andy Cohen and Bethenny Frankel. His intro into celebrity construction all began in the '90s when he helped refurbish the home — including a 300-square-foot shoe closet — of former Philippine first lady Imelda Marcos ("My hands bled the most during that job," Fanuka recalls).

However, Fanuka's blue-collar career has made him the perfect expert on home improvement as well as an appropriate spokesman for the Gold Bond's Cracked Skin Fill and Protect Cream. "I have 50 guys on my team. And a lot of them come back and they've got whether it's cuts or dry skin I keep a whole 5-gallon empty water canister filled with the small Gold Bond packets. They keep grabbin' em like lollipops. Happy men, happy life. That's how I stay in business."

The business of home

Stephen Fanuka PROVIDED

"I always tell people, make do with what you have, but repurpose for the situation you are best suited for."

improvement differs for all for both owners and renters — Fanuka says his No. 1 request with his clients is upgraded kitchens, while utilizing space is a priority for apartment renters — the end result — putting your personal signature on your home — remains the same. "Most places if you're renting, you're not going to be able to take down a wall, unless you're gonna write an agreement that you're gonna put it back," Fanuka says. "I always tell people, make do with what you have, but repurpose for the situation you are best suited for. If you like running on a treadmill, find a spot for that treadmill. You don't have to build a gym. You can put it in the corner.

4 HOME IMPROVEMENT TIPS FOR SMALL SPACES

Ditch the living room, create an office

"If there's a room to watch TV, you no longer need a living room. Make it into something else," Fanuka suggests. "Turn it into an office. Utilize the closets. If you have a little extra closet space, clear out the closet and put a desk inside the closet so you can close the door and nobody sees it. We put all our papers and our mail on the desk. You won't see the mess that you're creating. Take a closet nook that still has the doors, open the doors, put a shelf in there, put the chair in there, then close it up.

Utilize your ceiling for storage

"You can definitely create a [storage] system," Fanuka says. Everything's out there now. And you can hang it from your ceiling. It folds up. It's like an ironing board. If folds away. There's a company called Hafele. Great hardware.

There are lots of cool things out there, closet systems you can hang from your ceiling. Some fold up like ironing boards.

Also, 'style' your ceiling

"I tell people your ceiling is your fifth wall," Fanuka says. "Drop a hot color on it, whether it's lavender, blue, black — black happens to be a very hot color right now. Even wallpaper the ceiling. No one realizes what a funky color or even wallpaper on your ceiling can make on your apartment, and for pennies.

Accessorize

"Change out the lights, the hardware, the kitchen cabinet knobs — stuff like that will make you feel like you have something new without having to break the bank, because you may not be there next month because your lease is up and the [owner's] about to double the rent."

NYC Doctors Urge Back Pain Sufferers

Read This Before Having Surgery or Using Opioid Drugs

Modern Treatment stands to free thousands of New York Area pain sufferers from reduced mobility, stress and poor quality of life. Treatment may help avoid surgery or overuse of dangerous medication

NEW YORK CITY - If you are interested in relieving back pain or neck pain, getting back to basic daily activities without discomfort and having more energy, than this this will be the most exciting message you ever read.

Here is why:

There is a medical clinic in New York City called NYC Pain MD. Actually two of them... in different parts of the city. I'm not sure... but if I'm right... you may want to call them after reading this. If so, their phone number 877-278-8980.

Here's What This Is All About

The doctors at NYC Pain MD have made a discovery of sorts. It's not a discovery as in they invented something brand new. It's a discovery about when and how they apply certain back pain treatments... that they have fine tuned... and perfected to get better results than they ever thought possible.

Countless patients are living proof. And check this out: What NYC Pain MD doc's actually use is called an "algorithm"... a special step-by-step formula starting with proper evaluation so you make sure to leap frog or bypass treatments that won't work... and find the ones that will work best for you in a little time as possible. Less trial and failure means better quicker results for the pain sufferer.

Now, you may have even heard about many these treatments. But here's one I bet you may have never heard of... that might help you... and it's not an "epidural".

This treatment is called:

"Radiofrequency Neurotomy." RF for short. RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

There are many nerves around your back or neck and one of their jobs is to sense PAIN.

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to these nerves under advanced precision medical imaging to target the damaged areas... done right in their own clinic without intimidating, expensive hospitals or surgical center... to "block" the painful nerve flow.

Two steps in the formula are performed. First, a test or diagnostic "Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function. If this first "test" procedure is successful, RF Neurotomy or "Radiofrequency" will be performed for longer term relief.

NOT just the Treatment alone that is the key ingredient

You see, the real secret is the formula. And that again starts with a proper screening evaluation to determine if you are a good candidate and may achieve the results you are looking forward to. This is always Step number one.

And the best part about this screening is... It's FREE

This screening will give you so much relief just knowing what is going on... and what your best options are.

That's right. NYC Pain MD offers this first step screening at no cost to patients. The only problem is... they often get over 100 inquiries a day as they also treat almost every painful area and joint. Sometimes its hard to get through. If you don't get through to someone when you call... keep calling... or leave a message... it will be well worth it.

But that's just the first step

After your free screening, if you qualify, the doctors will discuss the best treatment plan for you in a way that you can understand completely. Not all complex "doctor talk"...

This may be one... or a combination of the advanced medical treatments offered at NYC Pain MD.

Everything will be explained and all your questions will be answered. And even better:

You will be given all this At NO COST. NYC Pain MD doc's are not like used car salesman. They will not be giving you a sales pitch. They are doctors and will give you the best possible options to help your pain and offer to help you the best way they can. In fact, with up to 100 inquiries a day from patient's looking for relief, it's often hard to even get a treatment spot.

You should also know this: While NYC Pain MD cannot help everyone... so many have gotten the pain relief they were looking for.

New Techniques May Replace Medications Or Even Surgery: Innovative treatment is now available at NYC Pain MD. Many are seeing dramatic relief for the first time.

One of the reasons they offer those first step free screenings, is because it has opened the door to so many people to get help that they never would have otherwise.

At the very least, you will finally have some direction and a plan. And... whether you have the best, worst or no insurance at all, NYC Pain MD programs can be made affordable to everyone

They do not want insurance issues... or not being rich or famous... to keep you away if you are suffering in pain.

There is a whole lot more I could say about their treatments etc... but this space is limited and that's best left for you and the doctors to discuss in person.

So...if you are even remotely interested ... take the a first step and give them a call at 877-278-8980 and ask for your free screening.

How To Schedule Your Risk-Free No-Obligation Screening Evaluation

When you call, tell the scheduling experts you are calling for the special "No Obligation Back Pain Screening Program". They will know exactly what you need to do and will find the next available and convenient spot in our in our schedule. So again, just call 877-278-8980. The lines get very busy so if you do not get a live scheduling coordinator, make sure to leave your name, number and time of your call on our voicemail. They will get back to you as soon as possible. Again, the number to call is 877-278-8980.

My grumble is cars that 1. Do not yield to pedestrians crossing the street. They inch their way into the crosswalk and make people who are crossing either stop in the middle of the street or end up waiting for the next light since there is no regard for the foot traffic. Are you so important and in too much of a rush to let people cross the street safely? 2. Cars that block crosswalks when they are stopped at red lights. I am talking about the people that have no concern for the safety of pedestrians and pull up into the marked crosswalk forcing people to walk around them and into unsafe areas of the street. Simon Pegg discusses his co-star's injury and how director Christopher McQuarrie turned 33 pages into a full action flick.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

While it is Ethan Hunt's job to repeatedly complete the most impossible of missions on-screen, the crew behind the "Mission: Impossible — Fallout" franchise clearly take the title a little too seriously as well.

That's because Simon Pegg, who reprises his role as Benji Dunn for a fourth time in "Mission: Impossible — Fallout," has revealed that when production on the film began writer and director Christopher McQuarrie's script was only 33 pages long, and he had no idea how some scenes would end. But rather than that causing chaos, as it would if any other director was directing any other movie, Pegg insists that it just brought the best out of McQuarrie.

"The way the film was written and constructed was very organic in terms of it grew as we went," Pegg tells Metro. "Chris had a kind of rough idea of where we were going. But the script when we started principal photography was 33 pages long."

"We trusted that Chris would come up with the goods as we went," he adds. "He works very well in that situation, he thrives under pressure, he is great at figuring stuff out. He relishes the opportunity to do that."

Despite these conditions, Pegg insists that there was never any suggestion or feeling that "Fallout" or shoot was in "a crisis."

"Even though the film was being created as we went, the confidence from the studio in that process — which kind of happened on 'Rogue Nation' really, even though we had a script, but it was kind of re-written as we went," Pegg says. "There was never a moment when it felt as though things were out of control, or that we were in trouble."

"There was supreme confidence in the process throughout. There was never a moment when we felt as though it wasn't going to work," he adds. "We had complete faith that those script pages would materialize. And they did. In a way it just seems to serve Tom and Chris' process."

But while Pegg clearly had every confidence that McQuarrie would be able to complete the film under these conditions, he admits that Tom Cruise breaking his ankle during production, which delayed filming for seven weeks, "actually helped."

"It allowed us to take stock of where we were, have a look at where we were going and plan a little more," Pegg explains. "I said to Chris, the best metaphor for the writing of this film is in 'Wallace & Gromit,' when Gromit is riding the train and putting the track down in front of the train as he is going. I sent him that GIF the other day and said, 'This is you writing 'Mission: Impossible — Fallout.' It is true."

"Things were always changing, nothing was set in stone in terms of where we were going, how things were going to turn out," he adds. "I'd often sit down and say to McQuarrie, 'So, what happens to next?' And he'd say, 'I don't know!' But it works."

"Mission: Impossible — Fallout" opens July 27.

Adrienne C. Moore talks 'Orange is the New Black' and the rise of 'dramedy'

What's in store for "Black Cindy" this season?
JOJO WHILDEN / NETFLIX

The actress opens up about the popular Netflix series' new season and complicated awards season categories.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

In the latest season of Netflix's popular series "Orange Is the New Black," Cindy "Black Cindy" Hayes (Adrienne C. Moore) has a problem. She and her fellow former Litchfield Penitentiary inmates are now on the other side of last season's devastating prison riot, and the authorities are looking for someone to blame.

Sure, Cindy had a hand (and several lattes) in orchestrating and prolonged the riot, but the district attorney's office is also trying to figure out who did something even more heinous. Something, as it turns out, that Cindy secretly witnessed.

"We're introduced to her as this sort of laissez-faire, humorous girl who takes life by the seat of its pants. She doesn't really take things seriously," says Moore. "But as we peel the layers back each season, we see the depth of her, the hurt and the conflict. We see, even in this season, how Cindy running her mouth can sometimes get her into trouble."

Much of this is due to her performance, of course. Yet Moore, who originally got her start in the theater, credits "Orange is the New Black" creator and showrunner Jenji Kohan's with Cindy and the other characters' depths. "She allows on the news everyday, Jenji's masterful writing helps us deliver. The comedy allows for the dramedy, or the drama, to be seamless."

That Moore drops the word "dramedy" into the conversation is telling, considering the reception of the show and others like it in the wider television community. Kohan grappled previously with the genre conflation in Showtime's "Weeds," and popular, critically-acclaimed contemporary series like Donald Glover's "Atlanta" are doing the same.

"I love working in that blend, because I think that's what life is," says Moore. "If you look at when people talk about theater and art and acting, you see the sad and the happy faces.

the humor and comedy to come together, to disarm you and let you sit back in the story," Moore explains. "When we deliver these very profound, dramatic and gut-wrenching moments, or talk about topics we see

I don't think life is like that. Life is a compilation of both. 'Orange' will probably be long gone by the time they make a category for it in the awards show, but I firmly think it's time, now with all of the things that are coming out and how storytelling has changed in the past few years. It's continuing to change."

One of the more recent examples of this change occurred shortly after the film "The Martian" was nominated for, and won, a Golden Globe for Best Picture in the comedy category. The Hollywood Foreign Press Association changed the category rules shortly thereafter, but the damage to the increasingly fraught genre distinction was already done. And as great as television shows like "Weeds," "Atlanta" and "Orange Is the New Black" are, their categorization continues to confuse many in the industry.

"At the Screen Actors Guild Awards, we're in the comedy category, but at the Emmys we're in the drama category," says Moore. "Look, I'm biased but I think 'Orange' is one of the best shows out there. Then again, 'Game of Thrones' is a very dramatic show, so it's kind of hard to compete with the drama of a show like that when they're cutting off people's heads and stuff. We're not cutting off heads."

"Orange is the New Black" season 6 premieres Friday, July 27, on Netflix.

What to expect from the 'Comedy Central Roast of Bruce Willis'

Just about everyone, including ex-wife Demi Moore, was on hand to skewer the star.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

"We actually just got word that a surprise guest has stopped by," actor Joseph Gordon-Levitt told the audience at the Hollywood Palladium in Los Angeles. "Ladies and gentlemen, Demi Moore."

"The Comedy Central Roast of Bruce Willis" airs Sunday, July 29, at 10 p.m. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

As soon as the "Comedy Central Roast of Bruce Willis" host finished saying the 55-year-old actress' name, roasters and attendees alike erupted into a standing ovation. After all, her ex-husband was in the middle of getting skewered by Gordon-Levitt and a stage rife with celebrities known and otherwise, and joining the fray was no small matter.

Because the cable channel's latest celebrity roast was filmed nearly two weeks ago, most of its secrets — including Moore's appearance — have already been well-documented by the press. Even so, the taped special is set to air this weekend, and for everyone else who wasn't lucky enough to nab a ticket to the event, Moore and her fellow roasters' quips about the "Die Hard" star will feel brand new.

For those of you who weren't on hand for the occasion, here's a quick guide to the highlights of the "Comedy Central Roast of Bruce Willis."

Demi Moore
Moore's surprise appearance was one of the evening's top moments. Not only was Willis pleasantly surprised by the moment, but the actress' incisive jokes about him were all the more poignant considering their past relationship. "I look at our marriage like 'The Sixth Sense,'" she said as the audience looked on with bated breath. "You were dead the whole time."

lation, ruled the night in Moore's stead. "Your daughters must be so proud of their father, Ashton Kutcher," she told Willis at one point. Despite the target on Willis' bald head, however, Glaser scored even more points when she set her sights on Comedy Central itself.

Dennis Rodman

Not every moment at the Willis roast was a roaring success, however. When former star basketball player turned reality-television figure Dennis Rodman took the stage, his various attempts to elicit laughter from the crowd bombed hard. This was especially the case when he referenced North Korean leader Kim Jong-un. "You keep making these bomb movies like Kim," said Rodman, "but at least he is smart enough not to release his." He apologized for the joke and others that fell flat. Whether or not it makes the final edit, however, remains to be seen.

The 'Die Hard' Christmas movie debate

Perhaps one of the most-talked-about moments from the roast, came when Willis himself took the dais. The actor told plenty of jokes at his roasters' expense, including Edward Norton: "You've rubbed more people the wrong way than Harvey Weinstein." Yet the moment that stood out (and launched plenty of think pieces online) was Willis' declaration that the first "Die Hard" film was "not a Christmas movie."

The EDM party of the summer

Elrow's over-the-top Rowlympic Games land at Brooklyn Mirage this weekend, the latest phase of their New York takeover.

EVA KIS
eva.kis@metro.us

Electronic music used to mean dingy warehouses at the edge of town where your only entertainment besides the music was waving around glow sticks. While there's nothing wrong with a classic concept, Elrow parties are the opposite of all of that, winning so many fans all over Europe that it's finally time for them to make a second home in New York.

"Honestly, there are almost no similarities of any kind between Elrow and an EDM concert," says Juan Arnau Jr., Elrow's CEO and co-founder. "What we do is we create an immersive experience for the fans. You're always in the middle of a show, there are all kinds of shenanigans happening all around you, and you really feel like you are the show yourself."

In New York terms, the best way to describe

If there's one phrase to describe the Elrow ethos, it's "over the top." PROVIDED an Elrow show is the dance and artistry at House of Yes meets the immersive environment of a BBQ Films party, with the production values of Electric Zoo.

Their track record says it all: Elrow's first show in New York was in December 2016 at the 1,100-capacity Flash Factory in Manhattan, which sold out in advance. Their latest show, just their fourth in the city, was in April at Brooklyn's Avant Gardner, with capacity for 4,000 people. This Saturday, July 28, will be their fifth, taking over the palm tree oasis that is Brooklyn Mirage with Eats Everything, Patrick Topping, Will Clarke, Technasia and more playing to a crowd of over 5,000 in a marathon 10-hour party themed (appropriately) The Rowlympic Games.

After skipping over the Las Vegas in the fall, they'll be back at Avant Gardner on Nov. 24.

"The reason why we have been growing here so well is because of New York fans, they've been welcoming us better than we could have imagined," says Arnau. "In return, we've spared no money, and we have produced the shows in a way we would do with attendance of 10,000. We intend to stay in the city for a very long time and keep doing bigger and better shows."

What makes Elrow different?

Elrow started in Barcelona in 2010, when Juan Arnau and his sister Cruz Arnau — scions of a century-old party-planning empire — were looking to start a concert event that wasn't about the artists but the people in the audience. "We produce a show where we want everyone to have the most fun," he says. "It's not about one single DJ or lineup."

The word "immersive" gets thrown around very often, but the lines between reality and fantasy really do blur at Elrow parties. Famous for its production values, Elrow fills its venues to the brim with art and entertainment well beyond the talent onstage. Walls become a gossamer mesh of fabrics and geometric rainbow webs. Neon dragons parade through the crowd. Aerialists and stilt walkers perform impossible feats of agility, while costumed performers make you question whether you're still in Kansas anymore, Toto?

And there's not just always something new to see — Elrow is famous for its tactile elements, handing out hats and masks and other props, dropping confetti on joyful revelers and letting the crowd bounce around inflatable toys.

"There's a massive creative process behind it," says Arnau. "We produce our own decor, we have very large teams of creative people who put it all together. It's endless hours of really hard work."

No wonder they've been put in charge of Saturday nights in Ibiza all summer long. So get a ticket — while you can still get in.

Elrow's Rowlympic Games go down Saturday, July 28 from 6:30 p.m.-4:30 a.m. at Brooklyn Mirage, 140 Stewart Ave. Tickets are $64.99-$99.99, ticketfly.com.

T. MICHELLE MURPHY

Inside Ample Hills' ice cream factory

What began as a single scoop shop in Prospect Heights has turned into a factory in Red Hook, where a museum of ice cream also awaits.

EVA KIS
eva.kis@metro.us

In Spring 2011, a little ice cream shop called Ample Hills Creamery opened in the quiet neighborhood of Prospect Heights in Brooklyn — and was instantly overwhelmed with love for its rich flavors with quirky names and funky housemade mix-ins. Now in July 2018, Brian Smith and Jackie Cuscuna's literal mom-and-pop shop is growing into an ice cream factory in Red Hook with their 11th scoop shop inside — plus a mini museum of ice cream.

"It's profoundly gratifying too to see the whole space come together and to turn this warehouse into a thriving factory that's open to the public," says Smith. "Especially to do it in Brooklyn, where we live, is incredibly special."

Two years in the making, the Ample Hills Red Hook Factory perched on the Brooklyn waterfront spans 15,000 square feet — a giant step up from Ample Hills' current 1,000 square-foot kitchen in the Gowanus scoop shop. The new equipment expands production to 200 gallons an hour, up from their current capacity of 15-18 gallons, which was keeping the company from growing even faster.

"[The shop in Gowanus] is tapped out, it can't make enough ice cream for a single other shop, so we were really struggling to keep up," says Smith.

Guests will enter the factory through the scoop shop in the front, get their ice creams, then move on to the factory in the back where all the machinery is visible through glass walls, just like in the original Prospect Heights shop. There will be guided behind-the-scenes tours as well.

Scoop shop in front, ice cream factory in the back. ALL PHOTOS BY LIZ CLAYMAN

The observation room also doubles as a museum of ice cream, with educational plaques and interactive stations about the ice cream-making process.

The factory is actually half bakery and candy shop dedicated to making Ample Hills' beloved mix-ins like ooey gooey cake and cookie dough bites — and yes, he knows his name and sent him a copy of our cookbook, and he wrote back maybe three days after he got the ice cream and just the said, 'Oh my god this is amazing ice cream, if there is anything I can do to help let me know, maybe Ample Hills at Disney?'

Ample Hills did open a shop in Orlando at Disney BoardWalk: "It was one of those sort of things that drops out of the universe."

Stories as ingredients

Smith's connection to the House of Mouse started much earlier. He grew up in South Florida and visited the Disney Parks in Orlando three times a year as a kid, "so there was a lot of Disney baked into the fabric of Ample Hills in terms of the focus on storytelling and narrative and how we could do an experiential ice cream shop," he says.

And while the ingredients certainly deserve their credit in making Ample Hills a success, Smith believes their real magic lies somewhere else. The ice cream museum's centerpiece is a 20-foot interactive board called Every Flavor Tells a Story, which translates Smith's creative process for new flavors into one visitors can use, too.

"We don't think about starting with milk, cream, sugar and egg; we think about starting with a story, and then we think about flavors that support the story we want to tell," he explains. "We're asking people to think about their own life as an ice cream flavor."

Speaking of, what's the special flavor for Red Hook? Every Ample Hills scoop shop has its own unique flavor that tells a story about its neighborhood. For Ample Hills Red Hook, that's The Hook: burnt sugar ice cream, a nod to the Revere Sugar Factory that used to be on the next pier over, with pieces of stroopwafel referencing the Dutch who were the first to settle Red Hook and named it, and chunks of fudge to represent the cocoa beans that were stored in the warehouse Ample Hills now calls home.

Brian Smith and Jackie Cuscuna co-founded Ample Hills in 2011.

Every Flavor Tells a Story

you'd love to buy those separately, too. "We'll see if we have the extra capacity," he says.

Friends in the highest of places

Ample Hills was plenty famous in New York since opening, but its partnership with Disney on three unique Star Wars-themed flavors tied to the 2016 release of The Force Awakens sent it into the stratosphere.

All that started when Ample Hills started shipping ice cream nationwide in 2014. "One of the first people to order on the first week was Bob Iger, the CEO of Disney," Smith recalls. "We saw

4 Great East Coast bike tours

[illegible]

Where: Burlington, Vermont
This almost-70-mile bike trip through the Green Mountain State will make you fall in love with the East Coast all over again. Starting in the Burlington, you will head east into New Hampshire along the Connecticut River. You'll then head back through

Where: Cape Cod, Massachusetts
This 22-mile trail through six sleepy towns in this Massachusetts beach destination is a go-to for many cycling enthusiasts on the East Coast. With trails through Nickerson State Park and views of the Cape Cod shore, this is the perfect late-summer trek for anyone

Where: From Maine to Florida
Now, this trail might not be for those who are looking for a short day-long journey. Initially proposed 25 years ago, this bike path — once finished — will span 3,000 miles from Maine to Florida with complete protection from traffic all down the East Coast. The bike path has yet to be completed, but you can still take daylong trips like the 60-mile journey from New York City along the Hudson River and through New Jersey.

Where: Erie, Pennsylvania
The Presque Isle State Park is a gorgeous tucked-away island state park near Erie, Pennsylvania. What makes this little park so special is the 13-and-a-half mile protected bike route that will take you over Lake Erie straight onto the island.

Mets' Cespedes done for 2018, maybe even longer

The oft-injured slugger will undergo surgery on his heels.

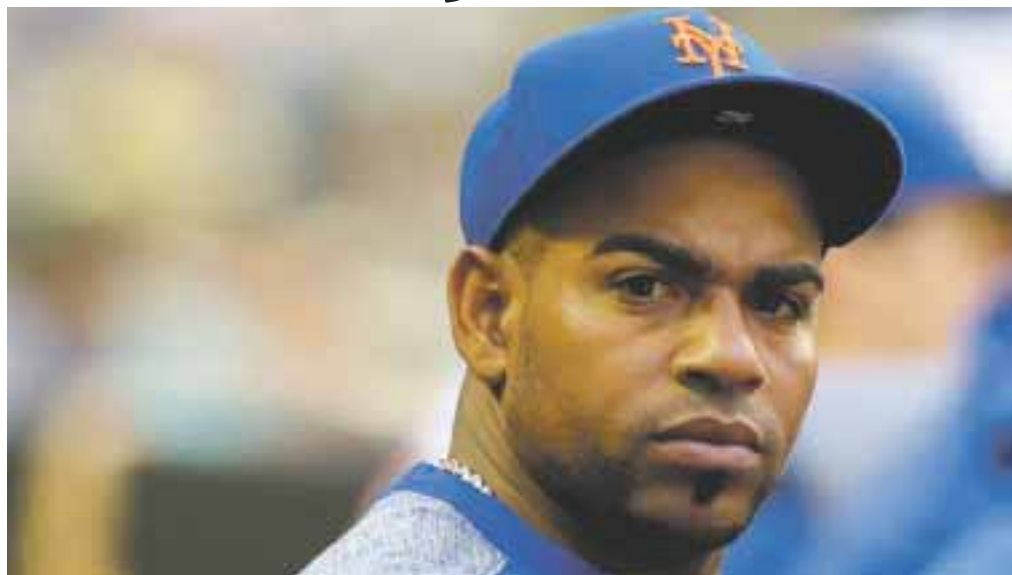

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The ongoing health saga of Yoenis Cespedes took another bad turn on Wednesday when MLB.com's Anthony Di-Como reported that the New York Mets slugger will be undergoing two surgeries on both of his heels.

Cespedes is expected to miss at least 8-to-10 months, which would schedule an earliest possible return for spring training. In all likelihood, he will miss the first few months of the 2019 regular season.

DiComo noted that Cespedes will undergo one surgery and partially recover before undergoing the second.

Yoenis Cespedes' 2018 season is done after 38 games after it was announced Wednesday that he needs season-ending surgery. GETTY IMAGES

The 32-year-old, who is now in the third season of his four-year contract, has played in just 38 games this year and a combined 119 over the past two. Cespedes has continuously battled leg issues, mostly his quadriceps and hamstrings, but missed a large portion of time this season due to a strained hip flexor that had forced him out since May 13.

He returned for a single game on Jul. 20 against the crosstown-rival Yankees, going 2-for-4 with a solo home run but revealed shortly that he has had a long-standing issue of calcified heels that could have attributed to some of his health issues since joining the Mets in 2015.

It was no secret as the Mets knew about the problem even when they traded for him during the stretch run of 2015 and while negotiating what would become a four-year, $110 million deal during that offseason.

Cespedes' absence is just the cherry on top of the putrid sundae that has become the Mets' 2018 season. Already out of contention before the league's Jul. 31 trade deadline, this is a team of sellers that is facing the very real possibility of another rebuild.

That would include possibly trading away ace pitchers Jacob deGrom and Noah Syndergaard along with veteran second baseman Asdrubal Cabrera.

As the team's biggest offensive threat, Cespedes' absence has played a large part in another nightmarish summer. In those 38 games this year, he was batting .262 after a slow start with nine home runs and 29 RBI.

Yankees bullpen gets even better after trade for Zach Britton

The New York Yankees bullpen became even more imposing on Tuesday night when the team traded for Baltimore Orioles All-Star closer Zach Britton for pitchers Dillon Tate, Josh Rogers and Cody Carroll.

Britton now goes from the worst team in baseball with the Orioles, who are flirting with a record that is 50 games under .500, to one of the best teams in baseball with the Yankees that are in the thick of a playoff push.

He was one of the best bullpen arms in baseball since 2014, accruing 139 saves over the past four-plus seasons. A bulk of them came from 2014-2016 when he put up campaigns of 37, 36 and a league-leading 47 two years ago while posting a minuscule 1.38 ERA in the process.

After a 15-save season in an injury-shortened 2017, Britton ruptured his Achilles during offseason workouts and didn't make his 2018 debut until June. He's 1-0 with a 3.45 ERA with four saves.

He is not expected to take on the closer's role in New York but will likely be a set-up man for Aroldis Chapman.

Chapman is once again having an All-Star year as one of the numerous invaluable arms that are found in the Yankees bullpen.

New York already had the league's best bullpen ERA at 2.75. Now it's expected to get even better with the arrival of Britton.

Just take a look at what the Yankees already had to relieve a questionable starting pitching staff. JOE PANTORNO

Pads have checked in on Syndergaard

As Major League Baseball's trade deadline approach, the Mets continue to consider trading Thor.

joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The hits keep coming for the New York Mets. Just hours before slugger Yoenis Cespedes opted to undergo season-ending surgery on his calcified heels, it was revealed that the San Diego Padres have checked in on the trade status of ace pitcher and fan-favorite Noah Syndergaard, per Dennis Lin of the Athletic.

It's just the latest development of the Syndergaard trade saga as he and teammate Jacob deGrom, who is having a Cy Young-worthy campaign, have been linked to trade talks since May.

However, the initial candidate for either arm was the New York Yankees.

Despite the Padres being 15.5 games behind the NL West-leading Los Angeles Dodgers entering Wednesday night, the organization looks keen on upgrading its pitching staff now. Ken Rosenthal, also of the Athletic, reported that the Padres also checked in on Tampa Bay Rays ace Chris Archer.

San Diego's starting pitching staff is one of the worst in the National League. Other than rookie Joey Lucchesi, who stymied the Mets on Monday night, the Padres don't have another arm who has started at least 10 games with an ERA under 4.29. The Padres' pitching staff as a whole is ranked ninth-worst in the majors, allowing 4.72 runs per game. The starters are even worse with a 4.83 ERA, which ranks 24th

Noah Syndergaard continues to be the subject of trade rumors despite being one of the Mets' aces. GETTY IMAGES in the league.

Syndergaard would provide San Diego with an ace for the next three-plus seasons as he is under team control until 2022. The Mets, though, would be looking for quite a significant return should they consider swapping the fireballing right-hander considering he is one of the game's most electrifying pitchers when he's healthy.

The Padres certainly have the means to at least pique the Mets' interest seeing as they have three of Major League Baseball's top 15 prospects, according to MLB Pipeline. Shortstop Fernando Tatis Jr. is the No. 3 prospect in all of baseball while left-handed pitcher Mackenzie Gore comes in at No. 12 and catcher/outfielder Francisco Mejia is 15th.

Should talks ever get that far, the Mets would likely ask for at least one of those talents.

Syndergaard has been limited over the past two seasons due to injuries though, which could drive his trade value down. The 25-year-old made just seven starts in 2017 because of a torn pectoral muscle before missing seven weeks this year with a finger issue. He only lasted two starts until heading back to the 10-day disabled list as he contracted hand, foot and mouth disease. He is 6-1 with a 2.89 ERA with 83 strikeouts in 13 starts.
